Agawam Police Dept. & Juvenile Probation Officers Form Partnership To Prevent Delinquency And Reduce Violence And Crime In Schools, Community

by Kathy Cassanelli
News Editor

For kids caught up in the juvenile court system, justice doesn't end at the door of the courthouse. The terms of probation under which juvenile offenders are allowed to return home are meant to be taken seriously and followed to the letter.

Some probationers used to treat those conditions as something of a joke. But, not any longer in the communities where the local police departments are teaming up with probation enforcement officers to make sure kids are conforming to the terms of their probation.

Agawam just became the latest Hampden County town to join in the growing trend.

Agawam Police Chief Robert D. Campbell announced a partnership has been formed between his department and the Juvenile Probation Department of the Springfield Juvenile Court as an alliance creating an opportunity to more actively and effectively supervise offenders in the community as a proactive team.

"We have more probationers in Agawam than most people realize because of the privacy laws protecting juvenile records," Campbell said. "The Springfield Probation Office will be providing us with information on the terms and conditions of the probationers and we'll be monitoring them. If there are any violations, appropriate action will be taken at that time."

School Resource Officer Karen Langevin welcomes the new partnership as a means of getting a better understanding of the kids who have gotten into trouble. Knowing the terms of their probation will help her with following up on youthful offenders both in school and in the community, Officer Langevin said.

Probation Officer Robert Martin said the program will support Officer Langevin by letting her know if a particular kid is supposed to be attending school, going to work, observing a curfew for being at home, or is allowed to attend school under a zero curfew requiring him or her to be at home when not in school.

"What would be normal behavior for most kids could be a violation for a kid on probation," Martin pointed out. "Officer Langevin will know the conditions of each probation."

One Of The First Initiatives...

One of the first initiatives being planned for the fledgling partnership found the probation officers teaming with police officers to make sure the closing day of school at the Junior High School is

Town Council Unanimously Supports Budget

by Kathy Cassanelli
News Editor

The $45.2 million operating budget proposed by Mayor Christopher C. Johnson sailed through the review process with the unanimous approval of Town Council at Monday night's meeting. The budget remained intact after one councilor's attempt to cut a retitled position failed to win the support of any other councilors.

The $45.2 million operating budget proposed by the Mayor is up $2,656,553 or 6.24 percent over last year. The $1 million capital improvement budget includes educational technology, road and sidewalk improvements, additional funding for the Agawam Library expansion design, a new roof for the Police Station, and funding for school library materials.

The largest area of increase is the School Department, which is up $1,479,123 (6.3 percent) over last year; on the town side, spending is up $646,751, or 4.4 percent. Overall, the largest areas of increase in the budget proposal accounting for an increase of more than $1.29 million are debt service, benefits and insurance, and a 53rd pay day for town employees. There are 53 Thursdays in the next fiscal year.

On behalf of himself and the absent Councilor Dennis Perry, Councilor Edward Caba objected to funding $25,589 for a position identified as personnel assistant, apparently on the belief that the position was an attempt to circumvent the council's denial of Johnson's plan to create a new, confidential assistant position in the personnel office last year.

Caba said Perry had asked him to convey their feeling that the money should be stricken from the budget. Caba added that he did not believe the workload in the Personnel Department had increased to the point of warranting "this kind of move." The chairman of the council budget subcommittee reviewing the section which contains the funds for the personnel office, Caba said he did not raise the issue when the committee met with the Mayor. Perry was not present at the meeting.

Invited by the council to explain the reasons behind the creation of the position, Johnson said it was the result of a negotiated settlement with the clerical union and did not represent the creation of an additional position, nor was it the same position rejected by the council last year. Personnel assistant is the new name for a former senior clerk position and will carry a new job description that more accurately reflects the duties performed by the person holding the job, Johnson said.

"The union felt this position should be called by a different name than senior clerk, a position that has been in existence for years," Johnson said. "They wanted a job description to cover the position."

Caba was alone in voting to cut the $25,589 from the budget. Johnson said he would be meeting with the union soon to determine if the salary for the position will be changed.

free of the shaving cream incidents that have plagued school officials and the businesses neighboring the school in years past.

"We're not going to tolerate some of the activities of the past," Martin pledged.

Sergeant Richard Curry, Agawam's liaison officer to the county justice meetings sponsored by District Attorney William Bennett, first brought the program to Campbell's attention. Curry will oversee the process of exchanging information and will orchestrate meetings between the probation officers and the APD detectives, the uniform division, and the school officers to implement the program.

"We want this to be a partnership with the whole department," Campbell said.

Probation Officer Jerry Sibilia, Jr., said their efforts will focus on some of the hot spots where kids tend to congregate and sometimes get into trouble. Although modeled on the successful program "Nite-Ride," created by the probation department in Lynn, Massachusetts, the probation profile program in Agawam will not be limited to night rides by either the probation officers or the police officers.

In its infancy, the program is already showing some results. One probationer, sick of having to dodge the police officers trying to pick him up for a probation violation, turned himself in, Sibilia said.

"We'll be doing some daytime activities as well as night rides and if they want us to help out if kids are causing a problem at Games and Lanes or Riverside Park, we'll do that as well," Sibilia added.

Open The Lines Of Communication...

Campbell said the program will significantly open the lines of communication between the police, the Probation Department, and the families of the offenders.

"Unannounced visits become gentle reminders of probation conditions and restrictions," Campbell said. "They also provide the officers with an opportunity to inform family members of conditions of probation that they may not be aware of, thus bringing the family into the process of probation."

With the goal of preventing delinquency and reducing violence and crime in the schools and in the community, the probation profile program makes it clear that probation will be enforced, provides a deterrent for future violations, and provides a deterrent effect for potential lawbreakers who will know that justice will not end when they leave court, Campbell said.

"We welcome the opportunity to become involved in such a worthwhile program," Campbell said.

Some of the activities that will be taking place under the umbrella of the probation profile program include serving violation of probation warrants and notices; monitoring compliance with curfew orders and substance abuse; conducting address verification; monitoring living conditions; giving out appointment notices; and meeting with family members and significant others.

The probation officers will be serving with police officers in both marked and unmarked cars, visiting probationers at home, on the job, and throughout their neighborhoods.

"As word of the program spreads, the kids are going to know we're out there and the probation officers are out there. This will be an excellent deterrent because they're not going to know when we'll show up," Curry said.

Sibilia is hoping that peer pressure (from friends trying to keep a probationer from getting into more trouble) will assist with the goal of delinquency prevention by keeping kids from violating their probation conditions.

According to the probation officers, parents have been the most vocal supporters of the program. Working with treatment programs, social service agencies, and community institutions, probation officers are spending more supervision time out in the communities.

As a result, the officers notice an increase in respect for complying with the terms of probation and a change in attitudes regarding the presence of the officers in the neighborhoods.

Campbell agreed that some parents will welcome the program as a way to help them deal with their out-of-control youngsters rather than calling the police.

"Now the parents who sometimes feel helpless will know that there is a support system out there to help them," Campbell said.

BUDGET - from Page 1...*Locker Rooms & Boys'/Girls' Bathrooms...

Reporting on her committee's work in reviewing the budget for the Building Maintenance Department, committee chairwoman (Councilor) Jill Simpson said she had originally questioned the fact that there had not been a substantial increase in funding to address the conditions of the locker rooms and the boys' and girls' bathrooms at the High School in light of the accreditation report.

Mrs. Simpson said the committee was told that Building Maintenance would be coming to the council for a transfer of funds to pay for new lockers once the bidding process was complete. After examining the logs used by High School janitors to record conditions throughout the day in the bathrooms, Mrs. Simpson said, "I was shocked to find out this is not just at the High School. It would not be appropriate to read aloud from these logs at a council meeting. Some of the conditions in the bathrooms are deplorable because of what the students are doing. This is far more than a little graffiti on the walls."

Before the council invests a large sum of money in making major repairs in school bathrooms, Mrs. Simpson said the School Department would have to demonstrate that they are taking responsibility for disciplining the students who are creating the problems.

"Before we pour in money, we have to be sure it's not going to be destroyed in six months," Mrs. Simpson said.

In his budget message to the council, Johnson said his budget provides for high-quality services without imposing new fees, raising the property tax levy, or seeking an override of Proposition 2½.

Letters To The Editor

No Corporation Has The Right To Deny Freedom Of Speech

To The Editor:

Four-and-one-half years ago, Berkshire Power Development (BPD) forced themselves on our town. At that time, a large group of us opposed the plant based on provable health, safety, environmental, property values, and zoning concerns.

All which have come to pass. Because we had such a strong case, BPD attempted to eliminate opposition to the project through financial incentives. Having failed to buy out all the opposition, they resorted to intimidation, bullying, and other unsavory tactics towards those who remained in the fight.

BPD went so far as to call a press conference to falsely accuse some of us of extortion and terrorism. After allowing BPD plenty of time to state their false charges, TV stations that aired the press conference refused to allow us equal time to rebut the phony charges. Through all of BPD's efforts, we continued to exercise our right to free speech and to keep the community protectively informed of the true nature of the project.

The more we spoke out and disseminated the true facts of BPD and their operation, the more intimidating and unsavory BPD became, until finally, they selectively filed a Strategic Litigation Against Public Participation (SLAPP) suit. BPD was successful in frightening off some and buying off others. Those that BPD got to were also forced to sign statements of confidentiality that would penalize them if they, or anyone associated with them, spoke in opposition to the project.

Still, through it all, the four of us remaining, rejected all intimidation and refused to be silenced. We in turn filed a counterclaim as a means of protection. We hold dear our right to free speech and our right to defend our community. We refused to put a price on our Constitutional rights or sell out our town and neighbors. The remaining defendants, Agawam residents Louis Russo, Peter Longo, Barbara Peterson, and Michael Del Negro, asked Superior Court Judge Peter Velis to dismiss the suit based on the state's anti-SLAPP suit statute. The anti-SLAPP suit law allows victims to bring a special motion to dismiss a case when they are being sued to force their silence on an issue.

Most of the Agawam City Council supported us in the SLAPP suit issue by asking BPD to drop the charges against us. BPD refused unless we dropped our protective counterclaim. Given the circumstances caused by BPD, we could not agree to drop our counterclaim.

First, to do so meant that we would have to sign a non-disclosure clause and promise to be silent. We could never do that, since that is exactly what we refused to do and what the fight was about. Secondly, if we were to simply drop the counterclaim, we would have no chance of being exonerated.

It was BPD that filed the SLAPP suit, just as it was they who didn't tell the truth about us being extortionists and terrorists at their press conference. Because of their actions and false statements against us, they placed a stigma over our heads that still exists today. Since they would never admit they weren't telling the truth, our only chance at vindication was through the courts.

In finding in our favor, Judge Velis stated, "At their very best, all of Berkshire Power's claims against the CCBA remain extremely weak, bordering on the frivolous."

The Berkshire Power project has become widely known across the country because of the controversy it has spawned. Because of BPD's strong-arm tactics, the town has been split apart, court battles have been waged, the political atmosphere has become exceedingly volatile, and citizens harmed.

Furthermore, BPD filed suit against the town, which the Mayor refused to defend. As a result, some of us took up the fight and defended the town's laws in court.

To date, of all the court cases and appeals, BPD has never prevailed. It is only when the Energy Facilities Siting Board (EFSB), a division of the state Department of Public Utilities, intervened on their behalf and allowed BPD to build.

The EFSB, a non-judicial and non-legislative appointed body, set a precedent by granting an independent power producer public utility status. However, most experts believe that the EFSB would have been overruled in court if only our Mayor defended the town instead of BPD. Instead, the local zoning bylaws throughout the state are useless against companies like BPD until the EFSB is challenged in court.

Still, after all that has happened, we feel that this case proves that no one individual or corporation has the right to deny any of us our freedoms, and those who are denied can fight and win. All it takes is the willingness to stand up for what is right, and not be scared off by those who wish to do wrong.

Thank you,
Louis Russo

Agawam Should Follow West Spfld.'s Non-Smoking Example

To The Editor:

The question of whether or not a town loses business when it goes smoke-free seems to have been conclusively answered by the article by Connie Hutton, a member of the West Springfield Board of Health.

I think all members of our Board of Health should read what she wrote before they vote on which direction our town will take.

We, the non-smokers of Agawam, thank you, Connie, for your support. West Springfield should be very proud that it was one of the first to show that it really cared for the health of its citizens.

Are you listening, Agawam?

Sincerely,
Millicent Barnard

Keenan Supports Grassroots WWII Memorial Campaign

State Representative Daniel F. Keenan is pleased to announce that he is lending his support to the National World War II Memorial Campaign. Keenan has contributed to the grassroots campaign, and urges the community to also get involved.

"The sacrifices made by this generation should be recognized," stated Keenan. "I am honored to offer any assistance that I can."

During his five years in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, Keenan has established himself as a strong advocate for veterans and veterans' issues. Highlights of Keenan's record include his work as a key member of a special committee which eliminated the practice of taxing a veteran's pension in Massachusetts, as well as his efforts to locate the first state veterans' cemetery in Agawam.

The National World War II Memorial Campaign is a grassroots effort to raise the necessary funds to construct a National World War II Memorial. The Memorial will be constructed on the Mall in Washington, D.C., to memorialize the contributions of every American that played a role in winning World War II.

Primary funding for the $100 million Memorial must be raised from private contributions. Anyone interested in contributing or learning more about the Memorial Campaign should contact Field Representative Robert Miller at (413) 569-3876 or Rep. Keenan's office at (413) 786-4545.

Nancy Thompson Announces Mayoral Run

by Kathy Cassanelli
News Editor

Midway through her eighth year serving on Town Council, Nancy Thompson announced last week that she is in the running to lead the town into the year 2,000 and pick up where the incumbent Mayor leaves off when he clears out his disk in January.

"I will continue to serve the community by providing progressive leadership and I will build on the solid foundation established by Mayor Johnson," Ms. Thompson promised in launching her campaign at the Captain Charles Leonard House. "It's going to take getting my message out to the people and letting them know I'm the right person for the job, what my views are, and how I will accomplish my goals."

Ms. Thompson's son, Ed Korza, will handle the campaign finances. Rather than appointing a traditional campaign manager early in the race, Ms. Thompson is relying on a small group of close friends and supporters to act as an advisory committee in organizing her campaign. So far that approach has been working, but Ms. Thompson did not rule out appointing a campaign manager in the future.

A member of the campaign advisory team, School Committee Vice-President Susan Pettazoni has known the candidate for some time and has followed her career in politics. "I admire the way Nancy handles herself in public. I admire the way she speaks the truth, and I admire the way she gives her all to the people of Agawam," Mrs. Pettazoni said.

Ms. Thompson said she is looking to have small meetings and coffee hours with the voters, to meet with people while she's out living her life in Agawam, and to knock on some doors to bring her message to the voters individually. A web site giving background information on Ms. Thompson's career in nursing, her government service in Agawam, and her stand on the issues will be announced soon.

"I will utilize the cable access channel on a regular basis to communicate with the citizens, and my web site will be updated on a regular basis once it goes on line," Ms. Thompson said.

Besides developing a proactive and professional relationship with Town Council, Ms. Thompson plans to continue working in cooperation with local mayors for the mutual benefit of the cities and to keep an ongoing dialogue with State Senate Majority Leader Linda Melconian and State Representative Dan Keenan.

Friends and supporters say Councilor Thompson has the management skills, the people skills, and the political savvy to win in November and to do an excellent job in the second-floor corner office at Town Hall.

Feeding Hills dentist, Dr. Susan Plourde, thinks Ms. Thompson is "very qualified for the job."

"Nancy has a strong background. She has good ideas and she's willing to work hard on those ideas," Dr. Plourde said.

Former Town Councilor Chris Quatrone, who supported Ms. Thompson during her two-year stint as council president, believes in her candidacy because she has the leadership skills, the ability to serve as mayor, and new ideas ready to be implemented. "Nancy will keep the government moving in a positive direction, and it's important that she's committed to building on what Chris Johnson has done," Quatrone said.

Not Merely An Extension Of The Johnson Years...

But, Quatrone stressed that a Thompson administration would not merely be an extension of the Johnson years. With a different leadership style, new ideas, and a different campaign style, Ms. Thompson is going to be a mayor who will work to keep everything going forward, rather than going backward or stagnating, according to Quatrone.

"We need a solid administrator who knows what they're doing. I'm confident she will be elected and she will draw on the administrative skills and the people skills she's developed during her nursing career," Quatrone said. "She will shine in the Mayor's Office."

With a master's degree in nursing administration and experience working in an executive position dealing with collective bargaining and other union issues, Ms. Thompson said she is well-qualified to sit at the bargaining table to negotiate on the town's behalf. Also, as a nursing administrator, Ms. Thompson said she developed both capital and operational budgets as well as good management skills, giving her the ability to work with and manage people.

Speaking to a gathering of supporters last Thursday evening, Ms. Thompson promised to make the education of all the children of Agawam a first priority in her administration.

Among the initiatives proposed by Ms. Thompson:

son:

- Continuing to provide comprehensive services to the community.
- Building a new DPW facility.
- Keeping the town on the cutting edge of technology.
- Establishing a second industrial park.
- Meeting the town's needs in the area of recreational facilities.
- Establishing a mayor's council on youth to be composed of young people and adults.
- Developing a hands-on practicum in government for AHS students to earn class credit while working at Town Hall.
- Identifying and meeting the needs of the town's frail and elderly poor.

Currently working in the insurance industry in Connecticut as a nurse care manager dealing with on-the-job injuries, Ms. Thompson entered public service in Agawam in 1984 when she was appointed to the board of directors of the Agawam Council on Aging, where she served for eight years and was elected chairwoman. Ms.

Thompson took an active role in forming the Friends of the Agawam Senior Center in 1987.

First elected to Town Council in 1991, Ms. Thompson served as president in 1995 and 1996. As a councilor, Ms. Thompson has served on the Rules and Regulations Committee, the School Budget Committee, the Licensing Committee, and the Street Acceptance Committee.

She has represented Agawam at the Massachusetts Municipal Association, and she was elected as president of the Massachusetts Municipal Councilors Association for two years. She continues to serve as a board member. In 1995 and 1996, she held the office of chairwoman of Women Elected Municipal Officials.

Ms. Thompson is a registered nurse with a bachelor's degree in nursing and a master's degree in nursing administration from UMass/Amherst. She has four grown children and a two year-old granddaughter.

In addition to her work on the council, Ms. Thompson is a member of the Italian Sister City Commission.

Roberts Bros. Circus Coming To Feeding Hills

A caravan of over 20 vehicles, including tractor trailers, trucks and trailers, equipment vehicles and campers will soon be pulling into town for the presentation of the Roberts Bros. Circus on THURSDAY, JULY 8th.

This year's show will set up at the POLISH AMERICAN CLUB GROUNDS at 139 SOUTHWICK ST. with showtimes scheduled for 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. (See the ad in this week's paper for FREE CHILD'S TICKET.) Don't forget the free tour of the circus grounds at 9:30 a.m. on circus day.

In times when many businesses are downsizing these days, Roberts Bros. is determined to maintain the old-fashioned circus atmosphere under the big top; the real circus you remember as a child. Roberts Bros. Circus is celebrating its 26th annual tour this season.

This year's theme is ALL NEW FOR 1999! The performance this year will be held under a new, custom-built Big Top, especially designed to house all three rings, making every seat in the house a "ringside seat." This year's 90-minute, action-packed performance features direct from Bulgaria, the acrobatic tumbling troupe of the Petrovi's, the Jenzac Duo performing their motorcycle daredevil stunts on the high wire.

Also featured are clowns, aerialists, high acts, jugglers, llamas, Liberty ponies, cute and cuddly poodles, the performing elephant, and much more. There are many things to do out on the midway before the show starts, so come early. Entertainment suitable for every age group from the smallest of children on through to the grandparents.

One of the features of the circus this year is J.B. Dick, better known as Jelly Bean the Clown, a gold medal winner at the International Circus Competition held in Sarasota, Florida, where contestants from all over the world compete for awards. Jelly Bean won the gold medal (first place) in two categories - for best clowning and also best in comedy.

After working for 35 years in public education, first as an elementary school teacher and then for 20 years as an administrator, J.B. Dick is now fulfilling his dream as Jelly Bean the Clown, traveling full-time with his wife, Phyllis.

J.B. Dick starts out his day giving free guided tours of the circus grounds. These behind-the-scenes tours are conducted at 9:30 a.m. daily and are open to schools, daycare centers, and the general public. Both entertaining and educational, the tour includes an introduction to many of the circus animals and a chance to watch a giant, old-fashioned circus tent being set-up.

As the day progresses, J.B. Dick is busy preparing for his roll as Jelly Bean. Props need to be set and costumes cleaned. It's soon time for J.B. to start applying his make-up, a process that will take over an hour, turning him into Jelly Bean the Clown. He has to be ready one hour prior to showtime, when the circus midway opens to meet and greet the people as they are seated. Jelly Bean performs his well-rehearsed numbers with his co-star, Bucky, a graduate of clown college with over 10 years of circus clowning experience. After the show, it's time to remove the make-up, settle in, and get ready for tomorrow's shows.

Every clown has their own face that becomes their trademark. Although there are thousands of different faces, they are categorized, for the most part, into three different styles. Jelly Bean is an Auguste Clown; the other two styles are the White Face and the Tramp Clown.

Eleanor Piccin Wins 3 Bronze Medals At Mass. Senior Olympics

Stacey Johnson, a friend of the bride, served as the maid of honor. Jeffery Jablonski, brother of the groom, was the best man.

A wedding reception at the Lusitano Club followed the ceremony, and the couple honeymooned at Disney World.

The bride is a 1993 graduate of Agawam High School. She is currently employed at Home Depot in Enfield, CT, as a customer service representative.

The groom, a 1990 graduate of Ludlow High, received a Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering from Western New England College in 1994. He is presently employed as a product marketing manager for Atlas Copco in Holyoke.

The couple resides on Lindberg Boulevard in Westfield with their daughter, Kayla.

Local Host Families Sought For Foreign Exchange Students

The Agawam Chapter of American Intercultural Programs (AFS) is currently seeking families to host exchange students who will be seniors at Agawam High School during the 1999-2000 school year.

The students arrive in mid-August and hail from countries from all over the world. Currently, there are five AFS students at AHS representing the countries of the Czech Republic, Brazil, Belgium, Germany, and Chile for the 1998-1999 school year.

AFS is the largest student exchange program in the USA. Agawam AFS is celebrating its 25th anniversary in 1999. The AFS Community Chapter includes 15 active board members and a faculty advisor at AHS, Mary Ellen Bruce, a member of the foreign language department at the school.

Many families in Agawam have successfully hosted exchange students through Agawam AFS over the past 25 years and have formed lifetime bonds with their "new family member." Many former Agawam AFS exchange students have returned to our community to visit over the years, and many of our Agawam host families have traveled abroad to visit their former host student in their respective country.

If you are interested in hosting an exchange student through AFS, or are interested in more information about AFS, call Family Selection Committee co-chairpersons Debbie & Craig Struck at 786-6760, faculty advisor Mary Ellen Bruce at Agawam High School, 821-0530 (weekdays), or chapter president Ric Sardella at 786-7747 (days) or 789-2005 (nights).

Encountering Difficult Situations In The Bible

Every now and then, we encounter some really difficult statements in Scripture, statements which make us feel like the words of the Bible may not always apply to our lives today. For some such statements, we can attempt to lessen their applicability to our own lives by focusing on the historical context. For example, when God told the Israelites to obliterate a certain people group, we can understand that the command was issued in the context of war, that we don't fully understand the sense of the times when the command was issued, and that, perhaps most importantly for us, we are not expected to follow or obey such a command today.

It is not always possible for us to so easily sidestep some difficult statements in Scripture, however. This is particularly true when such statements come from none other than Jesus Christ Himself. As hard as it may be for us to accept, Jesus did, from time to time, say things which, on the surface at least, appear harsh.

For example, Jesus said, "Do not think that I have come to bring peace on the earth; I have not come to bring peace, but a sword. For I have come to set a man against his father, and a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; and one's foes will be members of one's own household. Whoever loves father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me; and whoever loves son or daughter more than Me is not worthy of Me; and whoever does not take up the cross and follow Me is not worthy of Me."

There is no denying it, this is a tough statement from Jesus. Anybody who doesn't think it's tough either didn't read it correctly, or possesses no natural affinity towards family members. For the rest of us, we struggle to accept this statement from Jesus.

In order to accept this statement from Jesus, which seems to advocate family disharmony, we must attempt to understand what Jesus was saying. The first step in understanding what Jesus was saying is to ask ourselves, to whom was He speaking, and under what circumstances? We must appreciate that almost anything anybody says can be easily misunderstood if the statement is taken out of context.

The passage quoted above is set when Jesus was sending His disciples out on the road for the very first time on their own, on a preaching mission. He was sending them out to represent Him. Jesus gave them specific instructions, and offered them particular insights, to prepare them for what they would encounter.

Jesus told them that on this particular journey, the disciples were to concentrate on Jewish people. Presumably, they would be more likely than the Gentiles to understand the Old Testament promises of the coming Messiah. Some would embrace those promises and recognize their fulfillment in Jesus Christ. Others would not. Some of those who would not might be family members, whose reaction to the disciples might even be harsh. Although Jesus' message, "The kingdom of heaven has come near" echoes the angel's proclamation of "peace on earth," not everyone would see it that way.

Jesus' followers, from His era as well as today, will sometimes encounter hostility and rejection, even from loved ones, because we embrace Him. It's hard, but it's reality. We cannot force others to see things our way, nor should we try. However, even as we would not abandon our morals or principles to placate loved ones, Jesus encourages us to "take up the cross and follow" Him.

BIBLE CAMP

Our annual Bible Camp will be held the week of July 5th-9th from 9:30 a.m. until 12:00 noon. This camp is for children ages four through eight.

Registration forms are available in the Parish Office. Volunteers, teens, and adults are still needed.

Please call Sister Fran Gloster at 786-8105.

1999-2000 SCHOOL YEAR REGISTRATION

If your oldest child will be entering first grade (or will be new to our program) in September, please call 786-8105 and we will send you a registration form; or stop into the Parish Office and pick one up.

Students enrolled last year should have received a form by mail to register for the new year by August 1st.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO HELP?

With a community of over 6,000, we should have many who could help with our Religious Education Program. We do not expect "college professors," but an ordinary, committed Christian like you.

We even have a suggestion to help if you would like to help next fall. The Diocesan Office of Religious Education is sponsoring two courses this summer: "Teaching Religion Effectively" (for grades one through six) and "Adolescent Catechesis" (for ages seven through 10th). The first one for the younger grades will be on Tuesdays, June 29th through July 27th, and the program for adolescents will be on Thursday nights, July 1st through July 29th.

ADULT CONFIRMATION

If there are any adults who have not as yet been Confirmed, we will be having the Sacrament here at St. John's in October.

Sessions will be held to prepare candidates during August and September. Call the Rectory at 786-8105 to register.

PARISH PICNIC

Plans are progressing nicely for our Parish Picnic on August 29th. We will use our own St. John's Field for this event. Mariann Green is the chairman.

Want to help? Give us a call at 786-8105.

HOSPITAL VISITS

This is a good time to remind everyone going to the hospital to give us a call at the Rectory (786-8105) to let us know. The computer lists at Baystate and Mercy, especially with emergency room admissions, continue to be incomplete.

Someone visits the hospitals from the parish at least twice a week, but we have missed many patients in the process. We visit the out-of-town hospitals only when aware of someone who has been admitted.

Your help in all cases is appreciated.

Timely Tips On How To Manage Your Finances

by Sue N. Alvanos
Personal Financial Advisor

Planning For Retirement...

Most Americans dream about a secure retirement in which they can enjoy life on their terms. Their dreams include escaping the office and traveling around the world, finding time for hobbies, friends, and family, or relaxing and taking each day as it comes.

Whatever your dreams and aspirations, a secure retirement may be more achievable than you think. The following steps will help you assess progress toward your goal and create a plan to help make your dream retirement a reality.

Visualize the lifestyle you want. To help chart your course to a more secure retirement, determine what "retirement" means to you. At what age do you want to leave your current job, and how do you want to spend your time? If possible, "practice" your planned lifestyle during a vacation to see if it feels right. Thinking hard about what you want to do when you retire may help you avoid longing for the old days later on.

Estimate your expenses. Defining your retirement lifestyle will help you put a price tag on it — and thus set your retirement income goal. Do you plan to travel or pursue expensive hobbies? Do you want a simpler lifestyle that revolves around your home, family, garden, and local community?

In general, retirees' work-related expenses decrease while spending on hobbies, travel, health care, and insurance increases. Other expenses that could change during your retirement include housing (will you downsize or move to a popular retirement destination?), taxes (your taxable income may change or you may move to a place with lower tax rates), and family obligations (such as helping children, grandchildren, or elderly parents). The more accurately you can estimate your retirement expenses, the less likely you'll be caught short of cash when you leave your job behind.

RUNNING FROM GOD?

READ:
Psalm 139

Where can I go from Your Spirit? Or where can I flee from Your presence?
—Psalm 139:7

Francis Thompson wrote a gripping poem that he called "The Hound of Heaven." It reflected the torture of his life during the years he was running from God. At one time he had intended to be a priest but was deemed unqualified. Then he turned to his father's medical profession but failed again. Angry and bitter, Thompson gave up on God.

From 1885 to 1888 he lived the life of a derelict on the streets of London, suffering the agony of an opium habit. Finally some friends snatched him from the pit of death and brought him to the God he had dreaded. Thompson was gloriously converted.

His poem is his testimony. As the hound pursues the hare, ever drawing nearer in the chase, so God pursues the fleeing soul.

No matter how far you've run from God, the "Hound of Heaven" is still chasing you. Just when you think you've eluded Him, you'll discover that He's still there. David, who wrote Psalm 139, knew he could not flee from God's presence.

We sense His presence everywhere. It may be through the patience of a spouse, or the warm embrace of a friend when we expected to be shunned. But God is there.

It's tiring to run from God. Perhaps you sense that He's pursuing you. If you do, it's time to stop running. —HWR

Coldwell Banker Discusses Its Concierge Prog.

Citing the explosion of women in the workforce a major reason for growing consumer demand for ease and convenience, Coldwell Banker Real Estate Corporation (COLDWELL BANKER) is leading the trend for national real estate companies to offer consumer one-stop shopping.

The company has established the COLDWELL BANKER Concierge program to aid consumers in centralizing all the details necessary for homebuying and selling.

The U.S. Department of Labor reports that during the last two decades, the number of women joining the workforce has risen by 49 percent. As such, fewer and fewer women have large quantities of time at their disposal to coordinate all of the research and scheduling that is involved with the homeownership process.

For people selling a home, chances are strong that there are a great number of improvements needed to create a truly marketable property. For homebuyers, the purchase or sale of a home involves numerous time-consuming tasks from mortgage approval and closing services to utility hook-up and home furnishings.

"Thirty years ago, women were not as prevalent in the workforce, but now, women more often than not have increasing responsibilities both at home and at work. Service is important to today's customer, especially for women who are keen on time management issues and seek sources to facilitate their needs in one place, and on time," says Alex Parriello, Coldwell Banker Real Estate Corporation President & CEO. "The COLDWELL BANKER Concierge program is the first national program that offers consumers an option for streamlining the time-consuming, labor intensive process often experienced with homeownership."

The COLDWELL BANKER Concierge program is a true one-stop shopping concept that allows consumers to benefit from a comprehensive, less stressful real estate experience. With 63,714,000 women in the workforce, many households have less time available to focus on details and more demand for a third-party to take over coordinating the fine points of a move.

In addition to more women in the workplace,

Assisted Living Facility
Hypothermia - Death

The 91 year-old decedent was a resident at an assisted-living nursing home. During that time period, the decedent sustained a fall requiring hospitalization.

When the decedent was returned to the nursing facility from the hospital, instead of being returned to her assisted-living apartment, she was returned to a standard room within the nursing facility. She was noted to be somewhat confused, disoriented, and demanding that she be returned to her apartment.

The nursing staff determined that the decedent was at risk of elopement and the nursing facility wanted to put a security bracelet on her. The nursing facility claimed that the patient refused to wear the security bracelet. Not wanting to infringe on the decedent's privacy rights, the nursing staff put the bracelet on her walker.

On the morning of her death, the decedent had been missing from her room and, 15 to 30 minutes later, was discovered in a hypothermic state outside the rear door of the facility. The plaintiffs claimed that the decedent had apparently been in a disoriented state and in an effort to return to her apartment, wandered through the corridor, passed the nurse's station, walked outside through the exit doors, and froze to death.

The defendants alleged they did everything they could to prevent the injuries to the decedent and that the decedent was comparatively negligent to the extent that she refused to wear her security bracelet. The defendants also alleged that the value of the decedent's estate was minimal because of her age and the number of heirs.

The case was settled for $475,000.

Americans now have more disposable income than at any other time in our nation's history. This additional income allows consumers to spend more money. However, today's consumer views these luxury items as part of their day-to-day entitlement and are looking for value for the dollar.

"Our brokers recognize that buyers and sellers are looking for a unique system that offers centralized access to various real estate services," adds Parriello. "We have responded to our consumers with a value-added program that addresses the consumer's preference for ease and convenience. Like many other industries aiming for consolidation, a program like the COLDWELL BANKER Concierge service is the future of our industry."

There Are Various Advantages To Owning Your Own Home

Owning a home provides privacy, security, and a sense of community. But aside from many personal advantages, homeownership comes with a major financial advantage - tax benefits.

The professionals at Coldwell Banker Real Estate Corporation (COLDWELL BANKER) explain that owning a home versus renting can lead to a significant amount of savings when tax time rolls around. The real estate company offers some information, but also advises that taxpayers should always seek advice on such matters from a tax professional.

"Individuals who buy, sell, or own real estate benefit from some of the biggest tax advantages available," said Peter Parnegg, Co-CEO, COLDWELL BANKER Parnegg Metro in Albuquerque, New Mexico. "Anyone looking to build equity and profit from tax rewards can find what they're looking for in homeownership."

Benefits for taxpayers include:

* Most homeowners can deduct property taxes and interest paid on their mortgage every year of ownership.

* Interest paid on a second mortgage may also be deductible if the total of the first and second mortgages is not greater than $1 million.

* Homeowners can borrow against the equity they build. "Buying a home is an investment for your future," said Tom Despastuale, tax advisor, Jackson Hewitt Tax Services, Parsippany, New Jersey. "Equity from a home can be used to improve the property, buy a car, or pay for an education, and the homeowner may have the ability to deduct the interest from their federal taxes. Renters never have this opportunity."

* Single taxpayers owe no tax on the first $250,000 of profit for married couples filing jointly.

* Certain closing costs may be deductible if the move is job-related and the relocation is 50 or more miles from the previous residence.

* Depending on where you live, certain real estate tax exemptions apply for people who meet specific criteria. "In New Jersey, for example, disabled war veterans and their surviving spouses are exempt from real estate and property taxes. Homeowners should check with local tax consultants to see if any exemptions apply to them," said Despastuale.

Is there a best time of year to buy a home? "In regards to your income tax return, the earlier in the year, the better. If you purchase a home during the first six months of a year, you have deductible closing costs, and more months of deductible mortgage interest," said Despastuale. "Of course, in the long run, owning a home will save you money on your taxes regardless of when it is purchased."

COLDWELL BANKER KEENAN & MOLTA ASSOCIATES is the largest locally owned real estate company in Western Massachusetts. We have five offices in the greater Springfield area and approximately 70 sales associates. Coldwell Banker Keenan & Molta Associates offers comprehensive homeselling, homebuying, and relocation services.

Your Back And Your Health

Women may get headaches during menstrual periods and pregnancy, as well as under ordinary circumstances. They are more likely to be troubled enough by headache pain to find a way to overcome it.

Similarly, women are often victims of osteoarthritis (degenerative joint disease) and have a 200 to 300 percent greater chance than men of suffering rheumatoid arthritis.

What Can Chiropractic Do?

Chiropractic offers demonstrated relief for many of women's health problems. Chiropractic adjustments have been shown to lessen the discomfort of dysmenorrhea and chronic pelvic pain. Numerous back disorders that strike women are addressed and remedied daily, all over the world, by chiropractors skilled in treating those problems and in improving their patients' capacity to cope and to improve.

More and more women have become interested in diet, nutrition, weight loss, exercise, sports and physical activity, and methods for maintaining wellness and general fitness — about which chiropractors have considerable knowledge that they are eager to share with their patients.

Chiropractic wellness programs are particularly well-suited to the special needs of pregnant women, new mothers, women who are overweight, who are in stressful situations, and others who need to protect and strengthen their bones, nerves, joints, muscles, and overall health.

Great numbers of women rely on chiropractors because of the caring interaction that develops between patient and doctor, and because of chiropractic's effective combination of expert diagnosis, effective spinal adjustments and soft tissue therapy, exercise and nutritional guidance, and lifestyle counseling.

Family Membership (Part II)

Is the cost of family membership you?

Last week, I opened up our conversation by introducing the theme of family and personal identity. I described how, for many people, these are one in the same. Many people struggle in their attempt at differentiating a sense of self different from their families' version of who they are and who their family needs them to be.

I would go so far as to say that the person who considers and takes seriously this idea that they can be more than their family identity is living life dangerously and on the edge. The danger, I believe, stems from the deep fear that if I cease to see myself as my family identity, then I will cease to exist. It will feel as if my very self will not exist, especially since I do not know who I can be, only who I have been.

There is safety and comfort in knowing who I am, even if it is someone else's version. This can be true even if I am surrounded by abuse, neglect, violence, addiction, and other forms of "dysfunction." At least I know who I am! That must be better than knowing who I could be!

The Jews knew this fear and terror all too well. After their exodus from Pharaoh, the desert-bound Jews, as a nation, faced their "old identity" as brickmakers versus their promise from Yahweh to be His chosen people, free to become...

Despite all Yahweh's miracles, the story goes on to tell how the recently freed slaves melted their gold to create a pagan idol - a 'golden calf.' Now they could celebrate with drink and idol praise. This reenactment of Egyptian worship helped them re-create what it felt like to be back "home" again as Egypt's slaves, their brickmakers. They re-captured their "Familial Scent." They knew that this must be better than walking through this desert having to face their God, one another and their very self.

This story teaches us how unsettling it can become when you honor the voice within that yearns for life as you could be, as God has intended us to be, free. Even thinking about what "I want ..." can be considered subversive to the family version. For many of us, there is a natural tension and conflict between knowing our family identity and wanting our own identity, different from the families'.

When this conflict becomes yours, another interrelated conflict must be faced, namely; how then do I go about attempting to grow into this sort of identity change? Most people tend to work through their family of origin issues through their non-family relationships. Many people attempt to grow into their own version of self by way of these non-family relationships.

It is my opinion that one's best chance for defining a self different from the families' version, is to give significant focus toward working directly with one's own family (however that may be possible), rather than primarily through the non-family relationships. If, however, you attempt this latter sort of change, don't be surprised if somehow the original 'familial scent' gets re-created and/or packaged in a new version (a la the golden calf).

Bumping into our 'familial scent' (identity) is important! If you are fortunate to have a relatively healthy and positive 'scent' - terrific! Celebrate it! If, however, your 'scent' is something you want to change, run from or even destroy (a la cutting-up-the-membership-card with its privileges); then, I believe, you've already begun facing your true-self by desiring to create your own identity.

It is no easy task to create an identity that seeks freedom into a way of living that is more than the families' version! So as not to be misunderstood, I am not advocating anyone cut-off from their family (identity). On the contrary, creating a sense of self is more about how we are connected to the family identity in new and different ways, all the while not becoming limited by it! There is a strong systemic need to remain loyal to who the family system needs you to be in order for the family system to survive as it is into the next generation.

Is the cost for this generational transmission your version - your story - your very identity and a life as it could be? Family membership has its privileges? What do you think? Let's talk some more about this ... in the meantime, continue to e-mail and write to me with your feedback, relationship questions, and topics and Let's Talk about it.

What Are Some Of The Main Health Issues Of Concern To Women???

Women have most of the same health concerns that men have. But women face many health problems unique to them or that more often or more seriously affect women than men.

Doctors of chiropractic have always recognized this and have developed and provided a wide variety of treatment options specifically suited to women's health needs. Because of this (and because most women tend to have a heightened awareness of their physical condition and are accustomed to seeking help from health professionals), more women than men regularly rely on chiropractic care.

Women must contend with specific health concerns raised by their female physiology, by the fact that the female body is designed to be able to bear children. Issues involving pregnancy and the menstrual cycle are centrally important health matters for women.

Being pregnant, preparing for pregnancy, and recovering from childbirth are female indispositions. Pain during the menstrual period (dysmenorrhea), premenstrual syndrome (PMS), and chronic pelvic pain are among the distressing conditions which disturb the otherwise healthy lives of many women.

Tips On How To Avoid The Dangers Of Summer Heat And Humidity

Don't let the summer heat slow you down. Dr. Philip Henneman, chairman of Emergency Medicine for Baystate Health System, suggests these easy to follow, but important hot weather tips to keep you safe and healthy so this summer, the heat will not beat you.

- Stay out of direct sunlight and avoid strenuous activity.
- Postpone athletic activity during periods of high heat and humidity.
- Wear lightweight, light-colored, loose-fitting clothing and a hat when outdoors.
- Drink plenty of liquids - begin drinking before you go outside and, if exercising, drink one quart of liquids an hour to replace lost fluid.
- Avoid caffeinated beverages and alcohol.

"The young and very old are at particularly high risk in hot weather because both have the least ability to regulate their body temperatures," Henneman said.

He said warning signs of an oncoming heat-related illness include:

- excessive sweating
- leg cramps
- flushed skin
- nausea and vomiting
- dizziness
- headache
- rapid pulse

If in doubt about a possible heat illness, consult your physician or visit your local hospital emergency department.

Fitness Tips...

by Carmela Kirk, R.N.
Fitness Director
Fitness First

Untitled

I am currently in awe of one of my sisters. About six months ago, she got a flyer in the mail about a marathon to benefit the leukemia society.

It was a 26-mile run in Alaska and they wanted you to raise $4,000. At this point, I probably would have said, "Wow, I'd love to do something like that," and thrown it away.

She went to a meeting to hear more. She began to get excited and really wanted to try it. We all said, "Go for it, but keep in mind, this is way more than your weekly three or four miles."

I must hang my head and admit I wasn't sure she'd do it. She began to train. She followed all the advice she received from the trainers. We teased her quite a bit, saying her watch was wrong, her speedometer sped up.

She remained extremely motivated and focused. There were days she didn't feel like running.

There was one point when she was sick and got behind in her training. She never gave up.

I got a call recently that she finished in five hours and 22 minutes. She said at 17 miles she was crying (sorry, MaryAnn, if I wasn't supposed to repeat that). She knew she'd finish, but she had no idea where it was going to come from. She finished.

Where did it come from? It came from her. Somewhere deep inside she found it. She was humbled and knew that at any time she may have to quit. She was okay with that. Imagine the strength that takes.

You can do anything you want. We all have choices and decisions and it is 100 percent up to us. It can be horribly difficult to excel. It's so much easier to coast and still get by.

We need to get outside our comfort zone to be successful. She lived outside her comfort zone for quite some time and did exactly what she set out to do. Obstacles slow us down. That doesn't mean we turn around and go home.

Enjoy the journey. Each time she had a real good reason to give up, she didn't. If it was time to stop, she would have stopped and been very happy that she at least tried. She enjoyed the entire journey. She wasn't in it for the attention or the recognition. It came from deep inside, where so many of us never even dare look.

MaryAnn, I am fiercely proud of you and what you've done. You are an inspiration and a role model for us all. Everyone here at the gym is so behind you - 100 percent. I guess I just wanted everyone else to know what you did and to take a second to say thanks for the reminders.

A Patient's Story...

The following is a case from a patient who recently visited our office. She had suffered with left arm pain and numbness for years.

She had gone to numerous doctors and received many types of treatment with erratic results. The following is her story as she writes it:

1. What was your health problem? Neck, shoulder, wrist pain, tingling in some fingers.

2. How long had it troubled you? Many years.

3. Describe what chiropractic has done for you: relieved pain, more mobility in neck, able to work for longer periods without pain.

4. What have you told others about your experience with chiropractic? Very positive, can relieve a variety of problems. I'm a believer.

5. What would you suggest to someone with a similar problem? See a chiropractor; it will help and improve mobility and relieve discomfort.

6. Additional comments: I'm impressed with the positive results in a short time.

Lyme Disease Vaccine Available From Noble Hospital's Occupational Health Department

Lyme disease is a bacterial infection that is spread by the bite of a certain kind of tick, often called the deer tick.

Lyme disease can lead to potentially dangerous health problems. For the first time, there is a vaccine available to ward off this disease. If you are interested in receiving this vaccine or in more information, please contact Noble Hospital's Occupational Health Department at 572-5084. There is a charge for this vaccine.

Who is at risk for Lyme disease? Lyme disease is spreading across the country with the greatest concentration being in the Northeast, upper Midwest, and Pacific Coastal areas. Individuals at risk for Lyme disease are those who are active outdoors gardening, walking dogs, hiking, golfing, working, hunting, doing yard work, or just living near grassy fields or woods.

Lyme disease is difficult to diagnose and if left untreated, can lead to serious joint and neurological conditions. The vaccine is available for individuals age 15 to 70. Although vaccination is the best way to prevent Lyme disease, people should also follow some tick-avoidance measures, such as wearing long-sleeved shirts and long pants tucked into socks when in the outdoors to prevent tick bites, and also conduct regular checks on exposed skin and clothing.

Education

Gabrielle Robinson Of AHS Receives AIC Alumni Book Prize

American International College is recognizing Western Massachusetts high school students who excelled in the classroom. Among the 17 juniors who recently received the 1999 AIC Alumni Book Prize was Gabrielle Robinson of Agawam High School.

For their efforts, each student was given a Merriam-Webster dictionary and thesaurus gift set.

The award was first given out four years ago by the Springfield chapter of the AIC Alumni Association. Chapter President Gary Boisseau said the award is a way to honor high school students who have achieved academically and are good school citizens.

"Our alumni are very interested in honor student scholars, while letting them know that AIC is an outstanding school at which to continue their education," Boisseau said. "We have a 114-year tradition of success at AIC, so it makes good sense for us to honor students who have done well."

Boisseau, a 1979 AIC graduate, is a history teacher at the High School of Science and Technology in Springfield.

The Book Prize expanded to 17 local schools this year, up from 10 the first year. John De Bonville, director of AIC's Office of Alumni Relations, said the expansion comes as no surprise.

"Our alumni live in just about every city and town in Western Massachusetts. We want them to see that their alma mater is a leader in paying tribute to the area's best students."

Using A 1950's Setting...

'Little Red Riding Hood' Performed By First-Graders At James Clark School

The first-graders at James Clark School, Room 2, recently put on a play, "Little Red Riding Hood," set in the 50's.

Little Red Riding Hood (Gina Iannuzzi) was wearing a red poodle skirt, and the big bad wolf (Justin Wright) had a white tee-shirt, blue jeans, and loafers.

There was a mother (Caitlin Frazier), grandmother (Rebecca Impionbato), reader (Nicholas Gould), tree-o (Tony Mathes, Kyle Craig, and Jacob Barrows), Birdettes (Kyle Mansi, Alex St. John, and Deepa Desai), and the backbone of our play, the chorus (Nathan Chartier, Dina Desai, Jeffery Smith, Lenny Bruso, Tim McDonald, Steven Klimczak, Shawn Zaborowski, Heather Ghidoni, David Wilson, Anthony Pereira, Myrissa Toriello, Gabriell Nunez, and Brooke Quesnel).

The play was directed by the teachers in the classroom, Mrs. Curnow, Miss Mineo, and the assistant, Mrs. Govoni. The children worked very hard and did a wonderful job.

They had many songs to learn and some had individual parts to learn, and they were able to make this all work very well together.

This is one of the integrated classrooms at James Clark School where the class is made up of Special Education children and peer partners. The children all worked together and performed marvelously.

Lagacy's Legacy Will End At Local Speedway After '99 Season...

Canceling Riverside Racing A Big Disappointment For One Driver

by Dave Rollins
Sports Editor

One thing about big corporations — the whole deal comes down to the bottom line, no matter what kind of deal it might be.

So it was when the new owners of Riverside Park, Premier parks, announced suddenly last week that it would shut down Riverside Raceway at the end of this current racing season, ending the weekend of October 30th-31st.

Thus, the bottom line (simply more money) meant the red line, as in racing, was shut down faster than a blown engine. After 51 years as a tradition in Western Massachusetts, the raceway will be no more. Premier Parks has poured millions into Riverside Park, and the speedway operation simply did not fit into their long-range plans.

Of course, the situation means many people who attended racing at Riverside, as participants and as fans, will be out of a local track. And for some, the experience is a bitter one. Consider Agawam's E.J. Lagacy. He has been driving at Riverside since 1989 in a variety of cars. Two years ago, he switched to a brand-new category ... trucks.

Lagacy was doing quite well this season — fourth in points and only 22 points out of the lead when the shocking announcement was made. "The way those people went about things was weird. I don't think any of us saw it coming. If they had waited until the end of the year, people might have taken it a little differently, but not in the middle of everything."

Lagacy and probably others were steamed. "I'd just spent a lot of money on my truck. And Riverside is the only place trucks run as of right now, which means the money I'd spent could have gone to investing in another type of racing vehicle, like late models, if trucks don't catch on somewhere else."

The need for more dough says something about the sport's welcome in Western Massachusetts, according to Lagacy. "It's a slap in the face to so many people. Riverside was close by. It offered good and competitive racing for anyone who chose to race there. It was a great evening for the multitude of fans who showed up. I don't understand it," he shook his head.

"Premier Parks says they offer good family entertainment. Well, the raceway was all about that. You could see mothers, fathers, kids, aunts, uncles, and grandparents in the stands. Many of the racing teams were also made up of family members," he added.

Regarding The Future...

For the racers and those who follow them, the future (if not uncertain) is at least further away. The closest tracks are Stafford, CT (half-mile track), Thompson, CT (five-eighths of a mile), and Monadnock (like Riverside, a quarter-miler). "Like a lot of guys, we've been left twisting in the wind," Lagacy said. He also added that at those tracks, the venue doesn't include trucks (though, he admits, there is a chance Stafford might add trucks to its venue).

He also notes that if trucks do come to other tracks, it will mean a whole new setup, which means money will be needed to make them.

"Heck, the longer the track, the faster you go. Quarter-mile gear isn't going to work on the half- and five-eighths-mile circuits," Lagacy said.

"I know people travel from many miles away to attend the races at Riverside. It looks like that might happen to me. But it's not only me. There's my crew to think of," he said.

His crew includes his dad, owner Ernie Lagacy, plus crew chief Tom Gonet, Jim Taupier, and 15 year-old Scott Allen (all from Agawam). "I feel bad for Scott. He's very interested in racing and helps us out the best he can. But you are not allowed in the pits until you're 16. So he'll miss out on some valuable learning experiences in the sport," Lagacy said.

Lagacy admits the whole thing is pretty discouraging. "I was so upset when the news came down that I seriously considered pulling the plug on my efforts. But we're so close in the point standings that it will probably be best to complete the season."

Girls' Softball - Season Review...

For Lickley's Troops, The 1999 Season Was A Roller Coaster Experience

by Dave Rollins
Sports Editor

For the past decade, the Agawam High girls' softball team, led by Coach Debbie Lickley, has been the team others in Western Mass. measured themselves against. For four of the past five seasons before this one, they were Western Mass. champions. This year, they started out unbeatable, winning their first eight games. Then the roof caved in and they ended up 12-8 and were relegated to the ninth seed in the playoffs - the lowest ever in the Lickley era.

They got to the second round of the playoffs, beating Holyoke High, 2-0 before losing to Cathedral, 8-7 in the quarterfinals.

The regular season seemed slashed in two - the first part was the winning streak and an 8-2 record, the second a bitter struggle, which saw them go 4-6. But, the coach didn't see it that way. "We think of our year as three separate entities. The first is made up of our non-league games. The second consists of games in our league, and the third is the playoffs." In that case, they went 9-3 versus non-league foes, 3-5 in the Valley League, and 1-1 in the tournament.

A Roller Coaster Season

The coach said she didn't do anything differently as the roller coaster season rolled along. "Towards the end, it was more frustrating. We were inconsistent on offense and the mental preparation didn't seem to be there. During that time we learned a lesson about being prepared mentally," said Lickley. She felt they had that mindset in their second to last, 5-2 win over West Springfield High and their 8-7 playoff loss to Cathedral - a game which was decided by a Panther RBI single up the middle in the final inning.

There are some that feel the team didn't deserve the ninth seeding; that maybe the situation bothered the kids. Not so, according to the coach. "To be honest, you get what you deserve if it's based strictly on your record." Then she added, "I think, however, we were better than some of the teams ahead of us."

The Brownies will lose some very important seniors: pitchers Ali Jackobek (7-6) and Lindsay Mason (6-3), outfielder Jess Montagna, and infielders Erin Rescigno and Kornelia Moysis. "It's something we go through every year, saying goodbye. They maybe weren't the most athletic kids I ever coached, but they believed in the program, themselves, and their teammates," Lickley

They have a good nucleus of nine kids coming back, led by All-Western Mass. catcher Dianna DiStefano and outstanding shortstop Jill Gendron. "We never look at a new season as one in which we rebuild. The challenge is to continue the excellence and winning tradition of our program," the coach explained. She added that the greatest challenge will be assembling another good pitching staff.

The high points of the season, according to Lickley, came in their 5-2 win over West Side and the first five innings of the playoff game against Cathedral, when the Brownies led, 5-1, before letting it slip away.

The low point? "That had to be the fact that we knew we weren't playing for the title," the coach admitted.

A PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, You who made me see everything and showed me the way to reach my ideal. You, who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you, who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Persons must pray the prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish. After third day, wish will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as this favor is granted. I will never stop trusting in God and His power.

Mike Carney Concludes Baseball Career At AHS As Part Of WMass. Champs

by Dave Rollins
Sports Editor

One reason Agawam High did so well this past baseball season was the play of senior shortstop Mike Carney. Recently, he took some time out to talk about himself and his days as a Brownie.

Mike turned 18 on February 23rd. He stands five feet, 10-inches and weighs 140 pounds. All four years of his secondary education were spent at AHS. In his final semester, he took English 12, physics, integrated math, and history. Physics was his favorite course. The man who taught it, Arthur Gage, was his top teacher.

Right now, Mike is taking some time off. He'll be going to Westfield State College this fall, where he'll major in either sports medicine or computer science. "At this point, I'm leaning towards computer science. But that could change," he admitted.

Baseball was his sport in high school. He made the varsity this season and hit .253, with two homeruns and 15 runs batted in, after starring with the junior varsity, where he was the captain in his junior year. Mike also plays this summer for Agawam Legion Post 185, starting at shortstop.

There was no hesitation when he was asked what might be his most memorable sports moment. "Without a doubt, winning the Western Mass. championship this year. That was a great way to end a high school baseball career," he laughed.

He had this take on the season. "I was satisfied, despite our slow start. We had three goals - get to the playoffs, win at least 10 games getting there, and win Western Mass. The team accomplished every one of them."

Mike's favorite food is pizza.

Green is his hue of choice.

A fairly new Mustang convertible would be his car.

His top team is the Boston Red Sox. Their all-star shortstop, Nomar Garciaparra, is his number-one athlete.

Mike likes to kick back and hang out at his friends' houses.

Anything casual suits him in the clothes department. He likes to shop for his duds at American Eagle.

"I like all kinds of music, except country," he said.

While Mike has no top TV show, he did say "Dumb and Dumber" was his favorite flick.

His dad's name is John. Nancy is his mom. Mike has a younger brother, Brian, who just completed his freshman year. Brian played frosh baseball and is also a starter, at second base, on the American Legion baseball team. He has a sister, Lisa, who is 10 years old.

He says his dad is the person he looks up to.

Now that he's a graduate, he would like to be remembered this way: "I was a normal, casual, smart, and athletic kid."

Varsity baseball Coach Peter Clark said of Mike, "He is a good middle infielder with good hands, that's why he played short. Like all the kids, he worked well within the team."

AHS Girls' Track Team At Banquet...

Enduro Madness Continues At Riverside Speedway

It's the ultimate cage match of motorsports! Featuring slam-banging racing action of all kinds, Riverside Park Speedway's Thrills and Spills Series brought the Agawam quarter-mile track to life on Sunday night, June 13th.

In the program's main event, John Yagmin of Wethersfield, CT, captured the 50-lap, full-size enduro, and Joe Townsley of Simsbury, CT, won the four-cylinder enduro race. The exciting night was topped off with a wild demolition derby, and Jim Consalvo of East Hartford, CT, outlasted them all for the smashing win.

Traditional stock car racing was also included in the program, and veteran driver Keith DeSanctis of Monson, MA, captured the 20-lap Super Stock race. Palmer, MA driver Todd McGuire, a rookie in the Mini Stock division, picked up his first career win ahead of Cromwell, CT's Toby Clouser.

The Jimmy Fund Police division, which features real police officers racing in real race cars, saw Ludlow, MA police officer Eric Jenks drive his number-three car to victory. The Jimmy Fund Police division is a fundraiser event for the Dana Farber Cancer Institute Jimmy Fund, and fans' donations to the officers have raised over $60,000 since the division's inception 10 years ago.

The new and improved Di-Hard truck division, featuring race-prepared half-ton pickup trucks, was in action, and Torrington, CT's Don Truskaukas took down the 15-lap feature win.

The Thrills and Spills Series continues on Sunday, June 27th, with more car-crunching action.

A Full Day Of Fishing...

Recently, I was able to take a fishing trip aboard the Helen H out of Hyannis, MA. Captain Joe Huckmeyer's Helen H is a 100-foot fishing boat complete with berthing facilities. The ship sails from port around midnight. The ship has two brand-new diesel engines and a competent crew. The new computer-controlled engines give added speed and fuel economy so that the ship can sail to the distant, seldom-fished wrecks.

Capt. Joe Huckmeyer has owned the boat for about 20 years and still has that "fire in the belly" enthusiasm for getting his clients into fish.

Although the sleeping quarters are more like the Navy than the Ritz, you can get a good night's sleep as the vessel steams to its destination. At first light, you are awake, well-rested, and on the fishing grounds.

On the limited wreck trip that I was on, the fishermen were limited in number to 25. This assured ample room for everyone.

Captain Joe and the crew of the Helen H are experienced and friendly. You always had the feeling that they were really there to work for your enjoyment.

Our first stop in the morning was a wreck in about 180 feet of water.

The captain keeps a watchful eye on the fish finder and positions the boat so that it will drift over the wreck with the current.

Motor drifting, as it is known, provides a better opportunity to cover a wreck completely. We drifted over another nearby wreck and got into some larger fish. When the current gets really fast, there is not a lot of time for the baits to be in the fish-holding area, and shortly the boat gets underway and positions itself for another productive drift.

When using clams for bait, some anglers feel they need to put a huge gob of bait on each hook, but the more knowledgeable ones use a smaller piece and achieve a greater percentage of hook-ups.

The best method is to keep constant contact with the bottom, without letting the sinker drag. Doubles are not uncommon, and a pair of hefty cod can give you a workout.

When the fish are really hitting, the mates are busy gaffing fish and keeping lines untangled. They are never too busy, though, to give the novice some good advice and take a real interest in seeing that everyone is catching fish.

Once the signal is given to haul up the lines for the trip home, the bunk beds fill with weary anglers. The mates expertly fillet the catch for those who desire it, and the long ride back is usually spent in sound sleep.

On these extended trips, the ship usually returns around 9:00 at night. It is more enjoyable to be rested before driving home, especially if you have to go to work in the morning. These trips are slightly more expensive than the regular-style day trips, but the added fishing time and the chance to get some extra sleep are well worth it.

The Helen H is a first-class operation! Fishermen came from as far as New Jersey and Pennsylvania. These fellows are all repeat customers. They don't mind the seven-or-more-hour drive. The fish-finding skills of Capt. Huckmeyer and the competence of his crew make it all worthwhile.

FISH REPORTS FRESH WATER

George from BG's Pro Tackle in Enfield reports that while there are still some stripers in the river, the smallmouth action has picked up strong. Cat fishermen are starting to dot the night waters of the river with the glow of stern lights, as some big cats are being taken.

Kurt over at Saunders Marina in Southwick reported that some nice bass came out of South Pond deep in the back of the pad field.

From fishing buddy George Powling comes a first-hand report of some nice Northern Pike whacking black Cavitron Buzz Baits while fishing for bass at the Oxbow.

SALT WATER

Capt. Joe Huckmeyer of the Helen H reported by cell phone at presstime that the cod were hitting well on the wrecks and some of the hard-bottom areas of the banks. Largest cod of the day was about 30 pounds, with pollack up to 18 pounds being caught along with the cod. Porgy fishing is reported to be getting better.

Boats working The Race and Valient Rock are taking mixed bags of blues and stripers. Surf fishing is improving along the Rhode Island shores.

Capt. Larry Zarella of Outrage Charters on the Cape reports that bass in the 40-pound bracket are coming over the sides of his new boat almost daily. He is fishing along some of the rips at Nantucket Shoals.

Fluke action is on and off, but is picking up. Areas around the "pink house" at Misquamicut are producing. The mouth of the Connecticut River is also giving up some fluke, but you have to work at it.

FUNDRAISING DINNER THIS SATURDAY

The Sportsmen's Land Trust will be holding a fundraising dinner at the Tunxis Club in Tolland, MA, this Saturday, June 26th, with the social hour at 5:30 p.m. and dinner commencing at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $20 each, and they are available at 630 Silver Street, Room 30, 789-3720, or by calling Rick Vincunas at 786-8828.

Golf Tip Of The Week...

Compiled by Jim Modzelesky,
PGA
Oak Ridge Golf Club,

Hit The Three...

A good drill for practicing short putts is to try to roll them at different parts of the hole.

The idea is to get you to be more precise. Don't just aim for the hole. Aim for the left of the hole, or the right of the hole.

When you can do that easily, start aiming for the dead center.

Lisa Ziegert Golf Tournament & Family Picnic On July 4th

The annual Lisa Ziegert Memorial Golf Tournament will be held on Sunday, July 4th, at the Agawam Country Club. The tournament will be followed by a family picnic at the VFW on South Street in Agawam, beginning at 1:00 p.m.

The public is invited to attend. Donation for the picnic is $5 for adults, $3 for kids (ages five and under are free).

The proceeds will benefit the Lisa Ziegert Memorial Fund, which was founded shortly after her death. The fund is used to provide scholarships and to purchase school equipment such as computers, instruments, books, etc., for students in the Agawam school system.

Anyone who is interested in participating in the golf tournament should call Rick Brignoli at 786-2098 or Shelley Borgatti-Reed at 786-4960. Picnic tickets will be sold at the door.

Summer Baseball Camp To Be Held Once Again At Sacred Heart

The Coaches Camp will once again be running their summer baseball camp at Sacred Heart Church. The camp will be run for two separate weeks this summer.

The dates will be July 19th and July 26th. The cost of the camp is $100. During the week, the fundamentals of baseball will be covered, as well as games being played daily.

Each participant will receive individual batting instruction daily.

For more information, call Brian Rheault at 789-4792 or Lou Conte at 786-7729.

The 1999 Sachem...

“Life On The Edge Of Time” Gives Comprehensive Look At AHS & Beyond

by Kathy Cassanelli
News Editor

Like every high school graduating class, the AHS Class of 1999 is poised on the verge of stepping off into the future. With this year's senior class having the added distinction of being perched on the brink of the millennium, the staff at Sachem put their heads together to come up with an apt title for the chronicle of their senior year.

With its theme of earth on the edge of time and space facing the new millennium carried throughout the book, the 1999 Sachem gives the graduates a comprehensive look at Life on the Edge of Time at Agawam High School, a glimpse into what is making news around the world over the last year, and a new feature reviewing the highlights of the past century.

Editor-in-chief Heather Hughes and her associate editors Nikita Reshamwala and Sarah Nacewicz had the responsibility of seeing that everyone else did their work on time and accurately, particularly right before a deadline. Proofreading was a big part of their job and “Do it over!” frequently rang out over the noise and hubbub of rustling pages and frantic staffers struggling to meet a deadline and still meet the standards set down by the trio of editors.

Heather had the added task of dealing with the hassles when things didn't go exactly as planned, but it seems she, as well as the staff, managed to keep a sense of humor: an inside joke immortalized on the staff page shows a photo of Heather dressed and crowned as a queen who is the target of a swift kick in the pants—make that gown. And then there's the caption, “Sarah and Niki aren't the only ones who wanted to kick Heather's butt.”

Finding the ever elusive candy jar was just one of the many responsibilities falling on the shoulders of advisor David Pulaski's secretary, Patty Zerra, a.k.a. Mr. P's slave. Patty managed to keep the crazy staff under control while taking attendance, making phone calls, keeping records of each day's activities, and doing whatever odd job Pulaski asked her to deal with.

Headed by editor Jess Briotta, the layout staff did a notable job in working as a team. Staffers Tina Gregory, Jay Gagne, Erin Rescigno, and Lisa Marsh often joined their editor in spending long days and sometimes nights drawing the layouts for each page in the yearbook. The team is credited with coming up with some brilliant ideas and with blessing the pages with their creativity.

With their imaginations overflowing into graphic descriptions and comic captions, the four wacky literary girls, Shelley Rose, Holly Moren, Leila Mounemneh, and Amanda Peters left their zany mark on every page. Editor Brenna McGinn insisted each paragraph had to live up to Sachem standards, proofreading as fast as she could pen her criticisms.

The motto of the photography staff, “No fear” shows in the photos termed “more scintillating and zestful than ever” by the Sachem staff. Editor Jen Niedziela and her staff, Michelle Beaudette, Sarah Latif, and Dan Jock spent the year running around the school like the proverbial chickens without heads in order to capture on film those once-in-a-lifetime moments that fill the yearbook's pages.

Advertising editor Nicole Macey along with Gwen Gonyea, Katie Theroux, and Kornelia Moysis canvassed the town soliciting the ads from local businesses that are essential to Sachem's financial success. Some days, the staffers would feel as though all the running around looking for business owners was in vain. But, then there'd be the day they walked into a shop and found the one or two neighboring business owners conveniently collected there as prime prospects for a sales pitch. Better still was when they all purchased an ad.

Business staffers Shaunessy Egan and Jennifer McGuire came to school early and left late for a full month to make sure that everyone had the chance to order their books and that each customer received a receipt.

Stellar athletes Dan Balbony and Melissa Cote were the dynamic duo making up the sports staff. The two spent endless hours sifting through photos and statistics to give the school's athletes the recognition they had earned representing the school in athletic competition.

Combining overtime and teamwork, the Sachem staff overcame the inevitable squabbles and oversights to produce what they consider “the best yearbook ever.”

“This is by far the largest yearbook we've ever had at AHS,” said Pulaski. “We have between 70 percent and 80 percent of our pages in full color and Matt Fenn, the publisher's representative, told us it is the largest yearbook on the east coast for a high school of our size.”

Always looking for ways to keep the cost of the book as low as possible for the students, Pulaski is able to get a good financial deal from the publishers because the Sachem staff consistently meets their deadlines and turns in the highest caliber of work. And Pulaski is known to shop around in order to get the best bargain.

But, this year, the veteran of nearly 30 years as Sachem's advisor threw caution to the wind to give the last book of the century thermal end sheets that change from a deep purple to shades of pink at the touch of a hand or a ray of sunshine. And he still managed to keep the cost about half the average cost of a high school yearbook.

Making It A Real Standout

“We're always looking for new things and we wanted to make the '99 book a standout, so we disregarded the cost of the thermal end sheets,” Pulaski explained. “The kids loved it, especially the way the pages turn a mix of beautiful shades when exposed to sunlight.”

Despite the addition of the thermal end sheets and a four-page, full-color section reviewing the millennium in lifestyles, sports, entertainment, personal freedom, science and travel, the Sachem staff was still able to offer the book to students for $23.

Congratulations, Taryn & Erik!

From your christening to your graduation, you have given us so many reasons to be proud. Life with you has been a wonderful adventure filled with laughter and love. May all the best in life be yours always.

Love,
Your Moms & Dads, Lindsey & Jenna

With a page dedicated to every club, sport, or activity at the school, the book has thousands of photographs and includes a number of features rarely seen in high school yearbooks, including the eight-page color World Beat 98-99 wrapping up the highlights of the year in news and entertainment and the senior captions section to remind the grads of what thoughts they wanted to leave behind for posterity—if they can just remember what all the abbreviations and initials mean.

Some communities have stopped including senior captions in their yearbooks after some schools discovered the embarrassment of inappropriate messages or slurs hidden amid the captions. But the Sachem staff makes it clear to their classmates that each caption receives close scrutiny by the literary staffers and the feature remains one of Sachem's most treasured traditions among the students (it's their chance to send personal messages to their families, their friends, and sometimes to their teachers).

The Sachem cover, featuring a fox fur grain texture over a lithograph print, was custom designed by the staff and drew rave reviews at the Western New England Spring Yearbook Workshop held at Western New England College earlier this month.

Junior Kaila Larivee, next year's executive assistant to the advisor, attended the seminar along with Pulaski and other members of the 2000 Sachem staff. The conference drew dozens of students from across the Northeast in what is essentially spring training for the yearbook staffers, as well as an opportunity to see what other schools are doing and pick up some new ideas.

“Agawam was the hit of the conference,” Kaila said. “Everyone went nuts over this book. They loved the end sheets and I could overhear students from other schools showing the different features in our book to each other.”

Next year's Sachem staff, culled from more than twice as many applications as positions to fill, is already working on the millennium issue. Tight-lipped as always about the theme and plans for the book until it is received by the graduating class in June, Pulaski will say nothing more than to promise an every bigger and better issue at the dawn of the next century.

Every year, the Sachem staff aims to raise the bar a little higher and this year's book can safely be called a hard act to follow. But, that's hardly unfamiliar territory for Pulaski and his enthusiastic troops.

Happy 18th & Graduation, Too!

Love,
“MaJim”

Three AHS Graduates Receive 1999 Walter S. Barr Scholarships

The Horace Smith Fund, founded in 1899 by the estate of Smith & Wesson co-founder Horace Smith, recently held its 100th year anniversary celebration on the campus of Western New England College.

In commemoration of the centennial, the Smith Fund — through its Walter S. Barr Scholarship — granted an unprecedented 50 renewable college scholarships of $2,000 each (totaling $100,000 in aid) to graduating high school seniors from throughout Hampden County.

Among the 1999 recipients are three recent graduates from Agawam High School: Jason E. Flood, Jennifer L. McGuire, and Mario A. Santillo.

Provided a student maintains at least a B average in college, the scholarship totals $8,000 over four years to each Smith Fund recipient.

Students are selected on a variety of criteria, including their SAT scores, class rank, extracurricular activities, and a written personal account which outlines why a student feels he or she is deserving of the financial assistance.

Recipients are selected by a five-member committee comprised of individuals with experience in the field of education.

All high school graduates from Hampden County are eligible to apply to the fund, which offers Smith Fund loans, Walter S. Barr Scholarships,
